ALBANY, June 23 .- A further de-

From April to May there were further reductions in working hours in many factories due to seasonal inactivity, strikes or lack of demand. This accounts for the larger part of the decreases in average earnings among the various industries during the month in some control of the decreases in average earnings.

Business Item the month. In several industries, however, plants which were on part-time work in April have resumed the month.

part-time work in April have resumed full-time operations, resulting in greater earnings in May. A number of reductions in wage rates went into effect in May, the industries most affected being iron and steel, stoves, shoes, printing, salt and starch.

Seasonal inactivity resulted in a considerable reduction in the earnings of workers in the clothing industries from April to May. The largest reductions reported are $4.12 in millinery and $2.25 in women's clothing. The women's clothing industry also reported a considerable decrease in April. Minor decreases among the clothing industries during the month appear in men's clothing and furnishings, women's furnishings and laundering. The miscellaneous sewing division showed a slight gain during the month.

The chief gains in avenue.

The chief gains in average earnings from April to May appear in railway equipment, bakery goods and tobacco products. Increased working time in some plants accounts for these gains. Minor increases in May also occurred in stone products, brick, jewelry and silverware, structural and architectural iron, sheet metal work and hardware, paints and dyes, silk goods, wool manufactures, knit goods and confections.

Compared with a year ago the average weekly earnings for all manufactures weekly earnings for all manufactures.

Compared with a year ago the average weekly earnings for all manufacturing industries of the state show a drop of $2.59. Decreases appear in the majority of industries. The largest reductions reported are $12.74 in iron and steel, $10.43 in shipbuilding and $7.25 in jewelry and silverware. The industries which still show greater earnings than a year ago are reilway equipment, fur goods, printing, laundering, bakery goods, confections, beverages and light and power.
